CHATGPT ALTERNATIVES

1. Google Bard
 - Currently available to a few 'trusted testers' for now. There have also been no statements made by Google to integrate Bard into the company's search engine, but the company plans to add new AI-powered features to Google Search
2. Microsoft Bing
 - The revamped search engine is powered by an upgraded model of ChatGPT which the company is calling its new "Prometheus model." MS claims the new model is faster and more accurate than ever before.
3. DialoGPT
 - One of the newest and quite expansive ChatGPT alternatives that has been making the rounds lately. It has been built on top of ChatGPT, and hence, inherits its vast potential. However, this AI chatbot comes backed by more features and broader knowledge as it can access the Internet, which is something the former still can't do.
4. Jasper Chat
 - Based on GPT 3.5, among more language models, and has OpenAI as its partner. However, unlike ChatGPT, which can effectively be used by anyone, JasperChat has been built for businesses like advertising, marketing, and such.
5. Character AI
 - Based on neural language models and has been trained from the ground up with conversations in mind. However, what sets Character apart is that users get to choose from various personalities instead of interacting with a single AI chatbot.
6. YouChat
 - Capable of holding conversations with full access to the Internet. This connectivity means the bot stays up to date with the latest information, and hence, delivers accurate answers not only in chat but alongside search results too.
7. OpenAI Playground
 - This web-based tool works like ChatGPT but provides much more advanced options, including the ability to select a specific language model to experiment with.

8. Perplexity AI
 - Offers ChatGPT-like functionality, including the ability to hold conversations and provide simple to nuanced responses. However, unlike ChatGPT, Perplexity even cites the sources it is using to answer your queries. While the ability to see the source material is nice, it also opens the AI up to accidental plagiarism.
9. Caktus AI
 - The first-ever educational artificial intelligence tool that lets students automate their homework so they can focus on other tasks.
10. Github Copilot
 - Helps programmers by suggesting and completing code and entire functions in real time.

 - Has been used by millions of people around the globe, not just as a way to chat but to develop deep relationships with it.
12. Chai AI
 - A service that lets users talk to a variety of chat AIs from around the world. It is similar to Character AI but is more expansive and developed.
13. Neeva AI
 - You can ask it for recipes, food ideas, gifting ideas, and basically anything else, and get answers without having to go through multiple search results. It even cites its sources in the summary, so you can easily visit the links if you want to delve deeper into an answer.
14. Chinchilla AI
 - Currently not available for public use. So users who want this ChatGPT alternative will have to wait a while for access.
15. Tome
 - An AI-powered storytelling platform that weaves together a presentation based on your prompts using GPT-3.
16. LaMDA \(Language Model for Dialog Applications\)
 - Available for testing on Google's AI Test Kitchen. You need to register yourself and join the waitlist to download the app on Android or iOS.
17. Socratic
 - Was built for students so they can simply type in their school queries and get a human-like response, complete with fun illustrations to better explain things.
18. Megatron-Turing Natural Language Generation
 - Can carry out tasks like reading comprehension, word sense disambiguation, completion prediction, natural language inferences, commonsense reasoning, etc. However, the pricing structure can only be found once you submit your collab request with them.

19. CoPilot
 - One of the best websites like ChatGPT that offers multi-language coding support.
20. Tabnine
 - With the ability to host and train your own AI models, you can keep code secure on your corporate servers.
