Deborah is a former CEO, a seasoned public company board director, and a Senior Advisor to Boston Consulting Group. Her work is focused on technology, digitization, go-to-market strategies and supply chain improvements. She also has deep experience in M&A, private equity investment, activist investor engagement, board governance, and women's leadership. Ellinger was recognized by the National Association of Corporate directors as a Top 100 Director in 2019.

She is a director of two public companies, iRobot and Tupperware, and she sits on the global board of Women Corporate Directors, the world's largest community of female public company board members. Previous board memberships include Covetrus Interpublic Group, National Life Group, Sealy, and several private companies.

Deborah's board experience includes roles as Lead Independent Director, Chair of Nominating and Governance, and membership of Audit, Compensation and Talent, Strategy and M&A committees.

Deborah is also an advisor to several early-stage technology companies, and a Senior Advisor to Boston Consulting Group, where she works closely with their private equity clients. She has particular interest in consumer-facing businesses where growth can be achieved through better use of technology or operational improvements.

Deborah spent 14 years running four private-equity-backed companies on behalf of L Catterton and Charlesbank Capital: Ideal Image MedSpas, The Princeton Review, Restoration Hardware, and Wellness Pet Food. She achieved 3X to 9X increases in value through a combination of digitizing DTC marketing and engagement, expanding go-to-market strategies, developing online services and content, and streamlining cost structure. Deborah retains a close relationship with both L Catterton and Charlesbank Capital, and is a Limited Partner in funds they manage.

Earlier in her career, Deborah was an Executive Vice President at CVS Pharmacy and President of CVS.com, a Senior Vice President at Staples, and a partner at The Boston Consulting Group. She began her career in Finance with Mellon Financial Corporation.

Born in the UK, Deborah graduated from Cambridge University in England, studying mathematics and law; she was also an officer cadet in the British Army, in the Royal Electrical and Mechanical Engineers. She ran the Boston Marathon on behalf of an educational charity in 2015 and 2020, raising over $100K. Deborah is married with two daughters.
